

Our group focused on
the angle of identity
and boundaries in relation to memory

A background image of a beach on a foggy day. The sand is wet, and gentle waves are washing onto the shore. In the distance, several people are standing or walking, their figures softened by the fog. A surfboard lies on the sand in the foreground.

We built a speculation about a world where we share and live each others' memories; via an AI algorithm connecting us into a single community.

We zoomed in to the issue of blurred identity to begin our intervention.